"The All-Day Motor," the valves are An opportunity for the rubber growers to give Hawaii distinguished publicity is offered in the following notice from A. Staines Manders, the managing director of the rubber and tropical products exhibitions to be held in London in June. As mentioned in the letter of transmittal, in Tuesday's issue, "4:30 a. m. Hawailan time equals 3 p. m. London time," so that if the request for a congratula-tory meeting is complied with, the Suits that can be bought for only rubber men here will make a novel record for an assembly hour.

Owing to the depression in the lo cal rubber industry and the disinclination of the pineapple people to send exhibits to London, the movement started some months ago to effect this object has come to nothing. President Giffard of the board of agriculture and forestry was in favor of having Hawaii represented on the occa-sion, but his health failed and some weeks ago he went to the coast to recuperate. It had been hoped that Wilbur A. Anderson, manager of two rubber plantations on Maui, might attend the London exhibitions as he did, with notable results in publicity for Hawaii, the latest international rubber exhibition in New York. It is now learned, though, that the territorial rubber growers' association is not in a position to send him.

The announcement that Managing Director Manders has issued reads as

"Rubber Day, 24th June, 1914. "I am sending this letter to all associations and institutions connected with the rubber industry in all parts of the world, intimating that the 24th June, 1914, will be known as Rubber Day, and that on that date the Fourth International Rubber & Allied Trades Exhibition will be opened by H. R. H. Prince Arthur of Connaught.

"The opening ceremony is timed for 3 o'clock, which will correspond with the time in your country as stated at foot. May I ask that at that hour all industry throughout world?

"Should you wish to cable greetings to the president and others connected with the exhibition, if you will ad dress your message to 'Maltermass, London, it will be delivered to the exhibition. If the message is sent 'Deferred' the evening before it will reach the building in plenty of time for the opening ceremony, at which all messages will be read, and will also be printed in the press and offi-cial publication connected with the
